Bunker Works Despite Fire From Snipers

SAIGON (AP) - Viet Cong sniper fire rattled three times today around the heavily guarded U.S. Embassy while Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker worked at his desk. Vietnamese police killed one sniper a block from the embassy.

Bunker, 74, was unperturbed by the gunfire, officials said, and continued dictating to a secretary. But security officers moved the ambassador into a corridor to get him away from the windows and he resumed work there.

Officials said for a time during the firing, embassy employes were told to sit on the floor

The embassy has been under a heavy guard of U.S. troops and armored cars since Wednesday, when a 20-man Viet Cong suicide squad invaded the embassy compound and held it for six yours. They were wiped out by U.S. Marines, Army troops.

Alaska to Observe Own Groundhog Day

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) Alaska will celebrate its first groundhog day Friday with a West Virginia groundhog.

The furry forecaster was shipped to Anchorage earlier this week as a gift from the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources. In exchange, the State Game Farm received two arctic squirrels.

The idea for establishing a formal groundhog day in Alaska originated with Carl Sullivan, a homesick West Virginian in Anchorage who missed his annual Feb. 2 forecast.

Jurors Will Get Paid By Check

A motion to establish a standing fund for the district courts here to pay jurors by check rather than certificate was adopted by the county commissioners Thursday.

The motion established the procedure for County Attorney Jim Tarter to draw the resolution affecting the procedural change.

It was mentioned than an account probably in the amount of $5,000 would be established at one of the local banks. Tarter explained that the move was an attempt "to obviate the necessity of the district court having to deal in vouchers.

Under the present setup the jurors are paid in certificates which, it was explained, should be converted into cash at the county treasurer's office at the county building.

"Sometimes the certificates present a problem when people try to cash them at the banks, "explained Tarter. He said the "the laws concerning this are extremely antiquated," but

Pierre Cardin Presents Real Haute Couture

By LUCIE NOEL PARIS (AP) - Pierre Cardin presented an extensive and sensational collection at the spring and summer fashion showing Friday. It was brimful of ideas, proving that real haute couture is his specialty.

"I am no revolutionary," he says. "I am just ahead of everyone else by 10 years. To 11e, it is surprising to see women dressing conventionally and living in modern cities and keeping up a modern tempo. I am thinking of the future, of cities with architecture like Brasilia. The violence of our age explains my violent colors."

Capes are a leading theme. For street wear they top a blouse and skirt made of a sober or gay plaid tweed. For afternoon they become a cape dress. Fabrics favored were soft wool crepes, in light pastels.

The collection crened with a series of silver kid costumes with matching boots. Topcoats, windjackets, Juits, capes with shaped millinery in rhomboids and aluminum caps, stepped from a stage made to resemble a flying saucer.

Next came a group of checked plastic raincoats with goblin hoods-yellow, red and brown. Cardin likes launching the same idea in different colors in groups A dress with three black stripes edging the neckline. armholes and flared hemline FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) - heart. So what is wrong?" Lon has explained what is often wrong in such cases! Alas, the more a prospective bridegroom worries about his sexual ardor, the surer he will become platonic. For worry is a brain or "cerebral" process and thus inhibits emotional action. In psychology we say that a man can't simultaneously 'celebrate" and also "emote.' That's one reason why a suitor tries to keep his girl friend's mouth shut via his ardent

For if a girl keeps her escort engaged in conversation, as by asking him questions that compel him to answer, she thus keeps his brain cerebrating and dissipates his passion.

The mere act of casual conversation is a brain function and thus kills emotional ardor. Incidentally, it dissipates other emotions, too, such as fear, for if you can make a terrified person talk, he will lose much of his apprehension.

Grief, too, expends itself when you can let the victim get her sorrow expressed via words, as well as pent-up tears.
